

CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS

Sketch of the Indiana Senator Who Will be President Roosevelt's Running Mate.

Charles Warren Fairbanks was born May 11, 1852, on a farm in Union county, Ohio. He was graduated from the Ohio Wesleyan university, at Delaware, O., in 1872. Taking up the study of law he maintained himself by acting as agent at Pittsburg for the associated press. He was admitted to the bar at Cleveland in 1874, and in the same year removed to Indianapolis, Ind.

He soon won recognition as one of the leading railroad attorneys of the state, and became wealthy. In 1897 he was elected to a seat in the United States senate and was re-elected in 1903, his present term expiring 1909. He is the senior member from Indiana, Senator Beveridge being his junior colleague.

Senator Fairbanks enjoyed to a marked degree the friendship and confidence of the late President McKinley. No man in the senate was at the White House more frequently, or more nearly reflected the views of the administration. He was chairman of his state delegation in 1896, when Mr. McKinley was first nominated in St. Louis, and he was chairman of the platform committee at Philadelphia, in 1900, when Mr. McKinley was renominated and when Mr. Roosevelt was "drafted" for vice-president.

Senator Fairbanks was married in 1874, soon after his location in Indianapolis. His wife had been a fellow student with him in the university. She is a woman of rare social graces and has filled the position of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Should her husband ever succeed to the presidency and herself become the first lady of the land, she would rank high among the women who have filled that station. They have one daughter, the wife of an Indianapolis physician, and two sons, one of whom was a volunteer officer in the war with Spain.

SOUGHT RELIEF IN DEATH

A Chicago Woman Killed Three Children and Herself.

Chicago, June 26.—With starvation threatening her and her babies, and with her husband hopelessly insane in the asylum at Kankakee, Mrs. Anna Kelsdzick gave up the struggle for existence to day, killing three small children and then ending her own life. Illuminating gas was the means of destruction she adopted and when the bodies were found early to-day all four had been dead several hours.

The family lived in three small rooms at 965 North Roby street, to-day a constable was to eject the mother and her babies from the premises for the nonpayment of rent. It was after Mrs. Kelsdzick had been served with a summons to appear in court that she decided to end the lives of herself and her little ones.

The three children, Bruno, Herman and Walter, 7, 5 and 2 years old respectively, were found in bed locked in each other's arms. The mother's body was found lying on the kitchen floor, while gas was escaping from a jet in the room.

That the woman made every preparation to do away with herself and her children was evident. She first wrote and sealed a letter addressed to relatives in Germany. Then she bathed herself and donned clean linen. Each child had also been given a bath, clean night gowns placed upon them and the little ones sent to the sleep from which they would never awaken.

Several months ago Kelsdzick, who was out of work, became insane from brooding over his troubles, and was sent to the asylum. Since that time the mother, who was in poor health, has had a hard struggle for existence. Last week she became so ill that she was unable to work any more and had spent her last dollar for food for herself and the children Saturday afternoon.

FARMER TORTURED

AND THEN ROBBED

Refuses to Tell Whereabouts of His Hoard, but it is Found

Kansas City, Mo., June 26.—Isadore Neidhardt, a farmer living at Bethel, Kas., eighteen miles west of Kansas City, Kas., was tied hand and foot, tortured and robbed of $100 by three men last night.

His hired man, August Nushbaum, who tried to aid him, was beaten until unconscious and also bound with ropes.

After securing the money the robbers hitched Neidhardt's horses to a wagon which they found in a barn, and drove to the end of the Quindaro boulevard in Kansas City, Kas. There they abandoned the wagon and horses and rode into the city on a street car.

The men, according to Neidhardt's story, went to Neidhardt's home during the heavy rains and asked for shelter. One of the men seized him and another sprang on his neck, causing him to bend forward. Grasping his wrists, they tied him to his ankle and then tying his feet together they placed him against the side of the house.

Before they could gag him he called for help.

Nushbaum, who was in the barn, heard him and ran to the house. With the butt end of a weapon a robber beat Nushbaum over the head until he was unconscious.

The men returned to Neidhardt and with a pair of iron tongs pinched his flesh in an effort to make him disclose the hiding place of the money. He refused to tell them. The men then got an axe and broke open trunks and boxes. In a trunk they found the $100.

DOWIE'S WORLD-WIDE

TRIP DISMAL RETURNS.

"Elijah III" Returns After Fleeing From Many Mobs

New York, June 27.—After a world-wide trip, during which he has been run out of nearly every city and town that he visited, John Alexander Dowie, who styles himself Elijah III, arrived on the Lucania Sunday with his wife, Gladstone Dowie, his son, and Mr. Cantel, a deacon of the Dowie hotel.

Never, perhaps, has a leader of any religious sect had such exciting experiences. Before leaving his followers in Zion City, he predicted that he would bring back with him a fortune and a large company for Zion City. He is returning with his family and one deacon, while his store of wealth is said to be sadly depleted.

In Melbourne he was beset by riotous crowds and forced to flee to Adelaide, where he addressed a large meeting, at which he denounced King Edward. He was greeted with a storm of hisses and had to stop speaking.

Dowie then went to Switzerland. After trying to raise funds, in which he failed dismally, Dowie went to Berlin. He took rooms in the best hotel at the rate of $40 a day and lived in sumptuous style. He addressed crowded meetings, but his audiences were not enthusiastic, and he left the city in disgust.

In London he called his headquarters the Zion Tabernacle. His speeches calling for funds caused the English to give him the term "The Profit," and Dowie denounced the King. This excited the London populace, and on Saturday, June 12, he was mobbed in Euston street. An excited crowd tried to pull him and his wife from a carriage, and it was only owing to the hard work of the London police that Dowie escaped personal injury.

Muscotah, Kas., June 26.—Cland Olden, 16 years old, was probably mortally injured last evening. With some other boys he shot a cap pistol into an almost empty gasoline barrel exploded it. The left side of Olden's head was mangled.
